

TEAM 3: THE DESIGN CONFLICT

SCENARIO: “Marketing vs. Users”

THE SITUATION: You are redesigning the Homepage.

- The Marketing Director: Wants a Giant Pop-up asking for emails as soon as the site loads. (“We need leads!”)
- The UX Designer: Says Pop-ups are annoying and make users leave. (“It ruins the experience!”)

YOUR MISSION: You are the Product Owners. Both sides have a point (Leads = Money, UX = Retention). You need a middle ground.

DISCUSS & SOLVE:

1. The Compromise: Can you get emails without an annoying pop-up? (Where else can you put the form?)
2. The Logic: If you MUST use a pop-up, when should it appear? (Immediately? After scrolling? On exit?)
3. The Sketch: Describe how the new page layout balances “Sales” vs “Usability”.

OUTPUT: Describe your Design Solution that makes Marketing happy but doesn’t anger Users.